

Entertainment

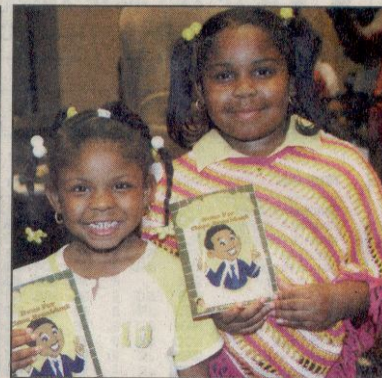

www.JacksonvilleAdvocate.com

October 7 - October 13, 2004

Unique Cornbread Book Signing

Author Vincent Taylor presents sponsor of the program Attorney Michael Atter of Wood, Atter and Associates, P.A. with a plaque of appreciation.

Creative dancers Kasana Griffin and Michelle Harris. These adorable sisters attended the book signing.

Jacksonville, FL - On Monday, October 4, 2004 the official book release of Cornbread Runs for President by Vincent Taylor was held at the Ritz Theatre & LaVilla Museum.

The program included a meet and greet; a karate tournament; a play which featured Cornbread played by Harold Jackson, Cornbread's dad played by Mike McCutchin, Lightning played by Terrance Hightower, Tiffany played by Alexis Jackson, and Judge played by Kevin Jones; a poem entitled "Why Cornbread" by Vincent Taylor; Creative Dance by Kasana Griffin and Michelle Harris; a drawing for prizes; and a book signing.

Vincent Taylor, who holds a BA in elementary education, has taught in Duval County Public Schools for 9 years. He's recognized throughout the U.S. for his highly energized, educational workshop "Reading, Parrpi' & Having Fun." Mr. Taylor serves as CEO and president of TriEclipse Publishing Company where he has authored two nonfiction publications, which have proven to help students make gains on standardized tests. He's also the founder of school-based program for at-risk males called The Young Gentlemen.

Mr. Taylor, an educator that truly believes learning should be fun, maintains that while anyone can teach, not everyone can be a teacher.